Directions: Select a scene from Part 2 of The Odyssey (From "20 Years in (1090)..." through "Penelope's Test" (1114)). What Greek Value/Trait is best represented from this selected section of the story? Create a claim (What is the Greek Value/Trait?), 1 quote, and reasoning. Finally, conclude your argument.

The Greek value best shown in this section of the story is intelligence. Throughout part 2 of the story, Odysseus is either instructed or does by himself acts of intelligence. An example of this would be on page 1098 when beggar Odysseus enters his home to find it filled with suitors. There he meets Antinous; a favored man in Ithaca at the time. Odysseus goes around asking for scraps of food, and all oblige except one. Antinous. Odysseus then gives Antinous a long awaited reality check that gets under his skin. He then throws a stool at the disguised Odysseus. This can be seen as an effective trap set by Odysseus, essentially ragebait. He successfully villainized Antinous and gained the sympathy of others. And gained an even better cover. This of course was orchestrated by Athena, the goddess of war strategy and wisdom. For the rest of the story, everything planned happens and Odysseus lives with his wife Penelope happily ever after. This shows the Greek Value most prominent in Part two of the story is intelligence.

Directions: Select a scene from Part 2 of The Odyssey (From "20 Years After the War" (1090)... through "Penelope's Test" (1114)). Glorious means to have honor, be fearless, and the ability to take command and leadership. The Odyssey, by Homer, shows many of these moments. In the scene Odysseus's revenge though, it shows a couple lines that best represent what it means to have glory / be glorious. "while he had arrows he aimed and shot, and every shot brought down one of his budding enemies. But when all bars had flown from the bowman's fist, he leaned his bow in the bright entry way beside the door, and armed: a four-ply shield bare on his shoulder, and a crested helm, horse-tailed, loading storm upon his head, then took his tough and bronze-shod spears. And Odysseus looked around him, narrow-eyed, for any others who might have hidden while death's black furt passed. In blood and dust he saw that creak all fallen, many and many slain." - Homer 1520-1530. This is the best quote to represent glory. It shows the fearless quality that Odysseus has. Odysseus shows true passion to fight, and even in the most dire situations, he stands his ground. Odysseus kills hundreds of suitors in this scene, given honor and respect to his heroes, Athena, Telemachus, Eumaeus, and others who aided him in battle, because of his leadership quality, which is one of the most important aspects of glory. This was not even Odysseus's hardest battle, as his battle with Helios did Zeus order upon a broken sinking-boat alone, but he made it out of that with bravery and courageous ness. Even if he was scared, he did it any way, which is not just a quality of glory but also bravery. This quote, though, still represents glory more than it did with Odysseus in the sinking boat, because Odysseus showed all of the same qualities but in battle, which glory focuses more on. To summarize, the lines 1520-1530 best represent glory, because Odysseus shows leadership, bravery, and honor fighting the swithers.
